

WHAT IS

025

Tomorrow

Not knowing is bliss not because it is complicated or intellectually challenging so life is easier without, it is because the knowledge we have accumulated so far seems to be corrupted and unreliable to build upon. Some people know more than others, equals to saying these days that some people are wrong more than others, strange deduction.

So, by facing the unknown we are left with the only real thing, the only tangible proof of truth, curiously, it is what we feel, the projection of 'what comes ahead', intuition, a relative emotional state. An arrow pointing towards an uncertain but definitely better future.

It is in the unknown we find hope.
